

AMST 140

Borderlands in a Global Context

MWF 10:00 am-10:50 am

Class location: THH 215

Class no. 10329

4 units

Taught by Professor Chris Finley

We will critically examine the social and political conflicts that arise and the challenges that migration poses to the ways in which national membership is established, public policy towards migrants is made, and the nation is imagined using the metaphor of border and borderlands to explore these issues. We will focus mainly on cases of Latin American migration, but will also include site cases in other parts of the world.

*To the Chicano/Latino Studies majors: This course fulfills Social and Political Issues requirement.

This course may also count towards the American Studies & Ethnicity major. Please contact our academic advisor, Cynthia Mata-Flores, at cmflores@usc.edu, for more information.

