Course Description
In this course we examine histories of racism, race, and racial/ethnic/national formation and identity in America (certainly one of the much-discussed, yet misunderstood, aspects of history, subjectivity, identity and identifications) through the portals of, primarily, American and European entertainment, media, art, and popular culture. Of concern to us is:

1) The vital role that media, art and entertainment institutions have played and continue to play in the cultivation and maintenance of racial hierarchy and racial hegemony.
2) How social movements and communities of artists, storytellers, producers, entrepreneurs, and executives of past and present have treated these institutions as important sites to contest structural and representational inequity, and create works of art, entertainment and culture that challenge us, and give us pleasure and joy.

We will decipher how race and ethnicity operate historically, materially and discursively, that is within institutions of power and representation, as well as within systems of signs and symbols that are both persistent and shifting – all of which work to structure, influence, and impact our experience and perspectives in the world. By interrogating a range of historical and contemporary representations, and examining various contexts of change within American and global life, we will develop theoretical tools to analyze media, entertainment, and the arts, and moreover the work of racism, race and ethnicity in buttressing and transforming American power and identity/subjectivity-making.

Course Requirements and Attendance
This course will mix lectures and discussions. Class will begin with a 30-45 minute lecture and will be followed by discussion, films, and presentations. This course will require you to actively and critically read and engage course materials and focus on developing your research and analytical skills. This is an upper division seminar, and there is a significant reading load, thus students are required to attend class regularly, to contribute to class discussions, and to do all weekly reading. My lectures will distill the main ideas and help you make concise study notes; therefore attendance in lecture is vital. You are allowed only three absences without explanation, after which there is a deduction of half a grade off the final grade for each unexcused absence.
Again, you are expected to critically analyze the readings and come to class prepared to contribute and share your ideas and opinions. Students are also encouraged to use the classroom as a space and community to voice their opinions and share their theoretical concerns and areas where their research and scholarship can be enhanced. It is vital that we create a space where diverging points of view and mutual respect are celebrated, so disrespect of any kind will not be tolerated. Lastly, there are several writing assignments for this class, and because the lectures, discussions, reading assignments and course assignments are all vitally linked, it is critical that you keep up with the schedule.

You will receive details about each assignment in a separate document. All assignments must be completed and handed in on time to avoid a grade reduction (1/3 of a grade per day including weekends). If you are unable to turn in an assignment due to illness or a personal emergency, you must provide written documentation that will allow you to be excused, or discuss your situation with me in a timely manner. Do not wait until the end of the term to sort things out.

You are responsible for the material covered in class and in the reading. You will be evaluated on the following:

1. the level of your engagement with the class materials (as evidenced in your written work, research, efforts in multimedia argumentation and design, and class participation)
2. your capacity to explain your ideas and analysis in articulate forms (whether written or visual)
3. your ability to creatively explore those theories and methodologies

All of your work will be graded on two primary evaluative scales:

1. how well it demonstrates an understanding of the theories and methodologies of the class
2. how well it articulates and structures its argument

A more clear and detailed description of how your assignments will be graded and evaluated will be handed out at a later date.

Final Grade Distribution

Course Grading Policy

Grades will be assigned as follows:

A: outstanding, thoughtful and enthusiastic work
B+/B above average work, demonstrating good insight into assignment
B-/C+ needs improvement on ideas, argument and follow-through
C and below fulfilling the bare minimum and showing little understanding of the material

Each assignment will be worth 100 points and will be converted to a percentage score depending upon the weight assigned to each. Your percentage scores on the assignments will be totaled and translated to a letter grade per the scale shown below:

Annenberg School for Communication Academic Integrity Policy:
The Annenberg School for Communication is committed to maintaining the highest standards of ethical conduct and academic excellence. Any student found responsible for plagiarism, fabrication, cheating on examinations, or purchasing papers or other assignments will receive a failing grade in the course and may be dismissed as a major.

In addition to the formal academic integrity policy, our pedagogical policy is based on mutual respect; all students are encouraged to use the classroom as a space in which to speak and to voice their opinions. Our expectation is that you will respect not only the professors but also your fellow classmates when they are participating in discussion.

It is vital that you always bring a notebook/notepad, paper and pen to every class. We will frequently spend small segments of class time working on in-class writing assignments and you will have to periodically hand in these documents.
Effective fall 2014, all undergraduate and graduate Annenberg majors and minors will be required to have a PC or Apple laptop that can be used in Annenberg classes. Please refer to the Annenberg Virtual Commons for more information. To connect to USC’s Secure Wireless network, please visit USC’s Information Technology Services website. Nonetheless, it is important to remember that use of computer in the classroom is a privilege. You may use a computer in the classroom ONLY for taking notes or for class presentations. If you abuse this privilege by checking email or going on the Internet, updating Facebook profiles, IM-ing friends, or playing solitaire, you will be marked as absent for that class period. All other electronic devices (cell phones, MP3 players, etc.) must be turned off and put away during class time. If this kind of activity gets to be a problem, laptop computers will not be allowed in the classroom.

Plagiarism

Statement on Academic Integrity

USC seeks to maintain an optimal learning environment. General principles of academic honesty include the concept of respect for the intellectual property of others, the expectation that individual work will be submitted unless otherwise allowed by an instructor, and the obligations both to protect one’s own academic work from misuse by others as well as to avoid using another’s work as one’s own. All students are expected to understand and abide by these principles. SCampus, the Student Guidebook, (www.usc.edu/scampus or http://scampus.usc.edu) contains the University Student Conduct Code (see University Governance, Section 11.00), while the recommended sanctions are located in Appendix A. All academic integrity violations will be reported to the office of Student Judicial Affairs & Community Standards (SJACS), as per university policy, as well as Communication school administrators.

In addition, it is assumed that the work you submit for this course is work you have produced entirely by yourself, and has not been previously produced by you for submission in another course or Learning Lab, without approval of the instructor.

Students with Disabilities

Any student requesting academic accommodations based on a disability is required to register with Disability Services and Programs (DSP) each semester. A letter of verification for approved accommodations can be obtained from DSP. Please be sure the letter is delivered to me (or to TA) as early in the semester as possible. DSP is located in STU 301 and is open 8:30 a.m.–5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday. Website and contact information for DSP: http://sait.usc.edu/academicsupport/centerprograms/dsp/home_index.html, (213) 740-0776 (Phone), (213) 740-6948 (TDD only), (213) 740-8216 (FAX) ability@usc.edu.

Stress Management

Students are under a lot of pressure. If you start to feel overwhelmed, it is important that you reach out for help. A good place to start is the USC Student Counseling Services office at 213-740-7711. The service is confidential, and there is no charge.

Sexual Assault Resource Center

The Center for Women & Men and the Sexual Assault Resource Center are one and the same. Student Counseling Services is a separate place that also offers confidential counseling and support groups on a variety of other topics. To schedule an appointment with Student Counseling Services, call (213) 740-7711 between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. weekdays or visit the Engemann Student Health Center on the University Park Campus.
