Course Description
Photography has played a unique role in raising awareness and fostering significant social change. One of the goals for this course will examine the continued effectiveness of photography in the digital age. At a time in history when literally of billions of digital photos are being produced annually—in one year an estimated 250 billion digital photos were made and nearly a billion camera phones were said to be in use—developing both a theoretical and practical understanding of the history and current practices of visual communication and its storytelling capabilities, principally through photography, video and film, is critical.

In this course, photography’s evolution will be charted, analyzed and discussed, and we will explore ways to utilize this knowledge to devise new strategies for the use of the photographic image. In recent decades photographs and video have been integrated, of course in mass media usage, but also in an array of interdisciplinary fields of study including sociology, anthropology, education, public health and medicine and of course art. Serious photo documentary work has and will continue to serve as a critical component in societal discussions and decision-making around global social issues, ie., war, famine, disease and poverty. There will be an ongoing analysis and exploration of the internet’s use of images on blogs and web sites, such as and YouTube and Flickr, and Bag News Notes.

Course Learning Objectives
Develop critical awareness of photographic uses in the digital age and image authenticity, manipulation and propaganda methods.

Explore citizen responsibility for assessing, conveying and purveying photographs for information, social awareness and social change.

Critically examine the emergence of citizen journalism and participatory photography and the impact on traditional journalism

Integrated Documentary Project
Each student will create their own visual documentary project with a minimum of fifteen photographs from a film or digital camera accompanied by text that will detail the project from its inception to its conclusion and that will be presented at the end of the course as a final project.

Each student will be responsible for production of the pictures and may be as small as 4X6 or 5X7 in size. The mission and scope of the individual documentary projects will be an integral part of the overall learning experience offered in this class and exhaustive discussions regarding each student's project proposal and implementation will be a focus of the course even though the general topic should be about your life. Access to a digital or film camera for entire course is necessary.

Academic Integrity

The School of Communication is committed to the highest standards of academic excellence and ethical support. It endorses and acts on the Campus policies and procedures detailed in the section titled “University Sanction Guidelines.” These policies, procedures and guidelines will be assiduously upheld. They protect your rights, as well as those of the faculty. It is particularly important that you be aware of and avoid plagiarism, cheating on exams, submitting a paper to more than one professor, or submitting a paper authored by anyone other than yourself. Violations of this policy will result in a failing grade in the course, and be reported to the Office of Student Conduct. If you have any doubts about any of these practices, you must confer with the professor.

Disability
Any student requesting academic accommodations based on a disability is required to register with Disability Services and Programs (DSP) each semester.
