

Prof. Accampo
SOS 280
accampo@usc.edu

HISTORY 425: THE ERA OF THE FIRST WORLD WAR SPRING 2013

Thursday, 2:00-4:50 p.m.
THH 111

No single event shaped the twentieth century more than The Great War of 1914-1918. During its course, and in its wake, traditional empires and monarchies crumbled, the first communist state was born, and the seeds were sown for the rise of fascism, Nazism, the outbreak of the Second World War, and the Holocaust. As we approach the one-hundredth anniversary of World War One, historians continue to grapple with its multiple dimensions and significance. This seminar will begin with a broad overview of the War, and then closely examine its causes, course, and impacts through multi-media primary and secondary sources, including art, poetry, film, fiction, memoirs, and war front correspondence. Weekly discussions will focus on interpretations of the war through these various media. Students will submit brief response papers each week. The first half of the course will focus on common readings. Some common readings will continue, but the second half of the course will focus more on individual research projects that will become the basis of a 12-15 page paper.

Please note: this course will provide you with the opportunity to begin to develop a research topic for an honors thesis, if you are interested in applying for the History Department honors program. If so, you will have the opportunity to develop the research in this course further over the summer (very possibly with funding from resources such as SOAR, SURF or Foulke), and then write your thesis in HIST 492 in the fall.

Readings and will be selected from among the following:

Michael Howard, The First World War: A Very Short Introduction
Susan Grayzel, The First World War: A brief History with Documents
Jay Winter, Sites of Memory, Sites of Mourning
Vera Brittain, Testament of Youth (selections)
Paul Fussell, The Great War and Modern Memory
Erich Maria Remarque, All Quiet on the Western Front
Pat Barker, Regeneration

Films will be chosen from the following:

Abel Gance, J'accuse, 1919
Jean Renoir, Grand Illusion, 1937
Stanley Kubrick, Paths of Glory 1958
Peter Weir, Gallipoli 1981
Bertrand Tavernier, Life and Nothing But 1989