

AHIS 322
ROMAN ART AND ARCHAEOLOGY

Henry Colburn
hcolburn@usc.edu

Mon, Wed 2:00-3:50, VKC 257

This course is an introduction to the Roman world by way of its material culture. From its origins as small city in central Italy it became one of the largest political entities in the ancient world; in its heyday the Roman Empire controlled territory stretching from modern Iraq to Scotland. But the Romans were not only soldiers and administrators; they were also skilled architects, ingenious engineers, and artists of great creativity. The material remains of Roman civilization are an invaluable source of evidence for understanding both Roman thought and the nature of everyday life in the empire. They are also crucially important for understanding the diversity of the Roman world. This course examines Roman art and archaeology from prehistory to Late Antiquity, with a view towards elucidating the culture, society and economy of the Romans. It is designed for students without any background in classics, art history or archaeology.

Goals

The goal of this course is for students to learn the following:

- The major sites and artifacts of the ancient Roman world, from the early first millennium BCE to the reign of Constantine;
- How these sites and artifacts contribute to our understanding of the history and culture of the ancient Romans;
- To analyze different types of material evidence, including ceramics, architecture, inscriptions, and coins, and to use them to address research questions;
- To distinguish between interpretations of evidence and the evidence itself;
- How scholars write about ancient art and archaeology;
- Basic strategies and principles of museum exhibition;
- The ability to present information and ideas orally and in writing to a scholarly audience.

Assessment

Participation (10%)

Students are expected to participate intelligently in class as much as possible. Exceptions will be made only in the event of religious observance, a commitment to an athletic team, or sickness; all such absences must be accompanied by suitable documentation. Even excused absences will make it difficult to properly internalize this material and students who miss class the least have the best expectation of succeeding in this class.

Quizzes (2.5% each, for a total of 10%)

There will be four quizzes throughout the term: two map quizzes and two quizzes on terms discussed in previous classes. These quizzes will serve as practice for the final exam.

Object Commentaries (10% each, for a total of 20%)

Students will write two short commentaries (600-800 words in length), each discussing and contextualizing a single object or monument from class. These commentaries should describe the chosen object, and explain its historical significance. Any object or monument marked with an asterisk (*) in the course slides is eligible for this assignment. Further instructions will be provided in class.

Long Paper (20%)

For the long paper (2000-3000 words), students will design a small exhibition of ancient art that addresses a specific theme of your choice (I will provide suggestions in class). Your paper will include the following elements: 1.) description of your chosen theme; 2.) description (including physical characteristics, dates, and provenance if known) and discussion at least of five objects (either from class or from major museum collections – I will provide links) that you would include in your exhibition; 3.) floor plan of your gallery, indicating where each object would be displayed; 4.) a discussion of how your chosen objects and their mode of display will teach museumgoers about your theme. Further instructions will be provided in class.

Exams (20% each, for a total of 40%)

Blue books are required for the exams. The exams will consist of definitions, identifications, and short essays. The definitions will be of key terms, including names, which have discussed in class or have appeared in the reading assignments. The identifications will be drawn from the lectures. Students will be expected to identify the author or creator, the date (to the century), the medium or type of object, and also to comment briefly on its historical significance. The essay questions will address major topics examined in class, and will spell out exactly what material to cover. The exams are non-cumulative.

Alternate exams will only be available in the event of a DOCUMENTED emergency. Since I am both the instructor and the teaching assistant for this course, I have relatively little time outside of our class periods. Therefore I highly recommend that you do your utmost to make it to the exams; I cannot promise you will be able to make them up if you miss them.

Grading Policy

I will not normally change grades after the fact, save in cases of calculation errors. It is your responsibility to maintain your grade average at the level you desire. In exceptional cases I will consider offering an extra credit assignment, but poor performance in class does NOT constitute an exceptional case. If you are at all concerned about your grades in this course please come see me in office hours as soon as possible.

This is a humanities class, which means that there is not necessarily a single set of ‘right answers.’ If you receive a B or lower on an assignment or exam, I may be able to tell you where you went wrong (and will be happy to do so in office hours). If you receive an A, however, I it unlikely I will be able to tell you how you could have done better. I will, however, be willing to answer specific questions.

Office Hours

I will hold office hours in Taper Hall 324 on Mondays from 1:00 to 2:00 and Thursdays from 2:00 to 3:00. Office hours are subject to change! Please do not try to ask me questions after section, because I will need to go to my next section (or to my office hours). Instead, please come to office hours, where I will be happy to answer your questions as best I can.

Email Policy

Students are welcome to contact me using the email address given on the first page. To make this process more efficient students should put the course number (AHIS 201) in the subject line. Students should allow up to twenty-four hours for a response, though normally they should have one within eight. Students should not expect responses in under three hours, at night, or on weekends.

Please always include a greeting of some kind in your email – even ‘Howdy,’ ‘Hey hey,’ or ‘Cowabunga’ is sufficient. It is extremely rude not to greet your correspondent, and I will not reply to emails that lack a greeting.

Accommodations

All students with documented disabilities will be accommodated to the best extent possible. Please inform me as early as possible, by email or during office hours, if you believe you will require some form of special accommodation. I cannot guarantee requests made on short notice or those without appropriate supporting materials, though I shall do my best to provide all students with what they need to succeed.

IT IS YOUR RESPONSIBILITY TO INFORM ME OF ANY ACCOMMODATIONS YOU MAY REQUIRE. YOU MUST INFORM ME OF YOUR NEED AT LEAST TWO WEEKS PRIOR TO THE DEADLINE OR EVENT IN QUESTION. YOU ALSO MUST PROVIDE ME WITH DOCUMENTATION OF YOUR ACCOMMODATION.

Lizard Policy

Any lizard brought to lecture or section MUST weigh at least 50 lbs. Smaller lizards will not be permitted and will adversely affect your grade for the course. Come see me in office hours if any aspect of this policy strikes you as odd.
