Course Description:

COMM 598 is the required research capstone course for the M.A. in Global Communication, a program that is jointly taught with the London School of Economics. This course is only open to students in the Global Communication program. This class fulfills the MA thesis requirement at USC. It also requires a practicum experience (an internship/externship on or off campus).

Course Objectives:

- To advance research in global communication and media
- To develop skills using multiple research methods and field data collection
- To learn how to edit and revise one's work
- To produce a publishable or conference quality research project or industry white paper
- To gain work experience through an internship/externship

The practicum/internship experience will not only will help students gain work or research experience, but it can also help students gain access to data for their thesis project. Many students over the years have received permission from the organizations where they are interning to use work project data for their thesis projects or to survey members of the organization where they intern.

Research Project:

This class offers students a number of options to choose from as they design their culminating research project:

- 1) Students can extend, refine and enhance their LSE dissertation project in order to submit it for publication.
- 2) Students can develop a project from another LSE or USC course and get it ready for either conference submission or have it published as an industry whitepaper (usually published on a website).
- 3) Some students may wish to begin a new project to create a portfolio piece that will be useful on the job market as a whitepaper or applied research, although they should be aware that this may be more time-consuming than the other options.

Assignments and Grading:

(Assignment descriptions are posted on Blackboard.)

Project proposal and presentation	25% (only the written proposal is graded but the presentation is still required!)
Final research paper	60%
Presentation of final research paper	15%

Students will be supervised by one of the course instructors. Other professors in the Annenberg School for Communication and Journalism who have subject matter expertise can be contacted and asked to help guide the research project. The final research project is graded solely by the assigned supervisor—either Dr. Riley, Dr. Hollihan, or Dr. Aronson. Requests for extensions or incompletes must be submitted in writing/email to your supervisor and accompanied by a note from your doctor or other explanatory material.

Readings:

Core readings are posted on Blackboard. Additional handouts will be uploaded to Blackboard based on the class' research topics and methodologies.

Attendance and Deadlines:

Attendance is required for the first two weeks of the term and for all presentation days unless you have prior permission to be excused. Missed deadlines or missed classes without prior approval can result in lowering a grade by half a point.

STUDENTS WITH DISABILITIES

Any student requesting academic accommodations based on a disability is required to register with Disability Services and Programs (DSP) each semester. A letter of verification for approved accommodations can be obtained from DSP. Please be sure the letter is delivered to Dr. Riley as early in the semester as possible. DSP is located in GFS 120 and is open 8:30 a.m.–5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday. ## ACADEMIC INTEGRITY

USC seeks to maintain an optimal learning environment. General principles of academic honesty include the concept of respect for the intellectual property of others, the expectation that individual work will be submitted unless otherwise allowed by an instructor, and the obligations both to protect one's own academic work from misuse by others as well as to avoid using another's work as one's own. All students are expected to understand and abide by these principles. SCampus, the Student Guidebook, contains the University Student Conduct Code (see University Governance, Section 11.00), while the recommended sanctions are located in Appendix A.

EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS/COURSE CONTINUITY IN A CRISIS

In case of a declared emergency if travel to campus is not feasible, USC executive leadership will announce an electronic way for instructors to teach students in their residence halls or homes using a combination of Blackboard, teleconferencing, and other technologies. See the university's site on Campus Safety and Emergency Preparedness.
