

COLT 471

COMPARATISM IN HISTORY AND THEORY

Professor Devin Griffiths
Tuesdays and Thursdays
11:00 AM to 12:20 PM

This course takes a comparative approach to study the history of comparatism in the humanities, social sciences, and natural sciences. We will use secondary readings in these fields to explore a series of contemporary works of fiction, by authors such as C. L. R. James, George Eliot, Germaine de Stael, and Abdul Rahman Munif.
