Course Description:
Social movements play a critical role in determining how our society operates; and our communication infrastructure and media are key in the organizing and impact of these movements. The Black Lives Matter Movement, the #MeToo Movement and various other social movements are shaping our future. This course is meant to provide students a critical guide and examination of various social movements in the U.S. and how they impact institutions and social norms, with a focus on the role of communication in determining whether these movements succeed or fail. This is a seminar for upper-level undergraduate students, with some theory but largely focused on current and historic examples. Student participation is required.

Learning Objectives:
Students will learn the following:
- The role of media in social movements.
- Tactics and strategy of social movements.
- Strategic organizing and strategic communication skills.
- The relationship between protest, policy and politics.
- How social movement theory can support the practice of political organizing.

Class Readings:
All required readings and course material will be available on Blackboard. Students are required to read/skim the Home Page of realclearpolitics.com every day.

Course Grading Policy:
You will receive details about each assignment/exam separately. All assignments need to be completed and turned in on time to avoid a grade reduction. If you are unable to turn in an assignment due to illness, you must provide written documentation in a timely manner to be excused. In order to pass this class you will need to complete ALL of the assignments. Failure to complete assignments and exams will result in an F in the class.

Grades will be assigned as follows:
A/A- outstanding, thoughtful and enthusiastic work
B+/B above average work, demonstrating good insight into assignment
B-/C+ needs improvement on ideas, argument and follow through
C and below fulfilling the bare minimum and showing little understanding of the material
If you have concerns regarding a grade on a given assignment, you must appeal it in writing stating the reasons you feel the grade is inaccurate, within one week of receiving the grade.
Grading Breakdown
Midterm Exam                      25%
Class Presentation               25%
Presentation Response/Reflection 20%
Final Paper                      30%

All assignments must be the original work of the student.

Class Presentations and Responses: All students will be required to pick a topic to present during the course. Readings on the topic will be provided in Blackboard, but students are encouraged to supplement the material. You are required to create a powerpoint presentation with narrative or a corresponding blog post and present to me seven days before presentation. Presentations should address the following:

- What is the problem the movement is hoping to address?
- How is the movement organized?
- What are the ways the movement stakeholders communicate with each other?
- What are the ways the movement participants communicate externally?
- How is the movement perceived by the various media?
- How is the movement perceived by the public?
- How might the movement define success?

All students are required to review, and critically and thoughtfully respond to the presentations and related readings within two days of the presentation posting with a two page reflection paper.

Course Schedule: A Weekly Breakdown

Class Sessions
Class sessions will be a short lecture/presentation with in-class discussion. The assigned reading and discussion will provide the necessary backdrop for the exams. As the semester progresses we will be building on rapidly changing current events, as such, attendance is very important. Students are to have completed all assigned reading prior to class so that participation can be full and vibrant.

Important note to students: Be advised that this syllabus is subject to change based on the progress of the class, news events, and/or guest speaker availability.

Classroom Policies and Conduct:
All undergraduate and graduate Annenberg majors and minors will be required to have a PC or Apple laptop that can be used in Annenberg classes. Please refer to the Annenberg Virtual Commons for more information. To connect to USC’s Secure Wireless network, please visit USC’s Information Technology Services website.

Nonetheless, it is important to remember that use of computer in the classroom is a privilege. You may use a computer in the classroom ONLY for or for class presentations. If you abuse this privilege by checking email or going on the Internet, updating Facebook profiles, IM-ing friends, or playing solitaire, you will be marked as absent for that class period. All other electronic devices (cell phones, MP3 players, etc.) must be turned off and put away during class time. It is vital that you always bring a notebook/notepad, paper and pen to every class, there will be times when we ask you to take notes but to close your laptops.

Our pedagogical policy is based on mutual respect; all students are encouraged to use the classroom as a space in which to speak and to voice their opinions. Our expectation is that you will respect not only the professors but also your fellow classmates when they are participating in discussion.

Statement on Academic Conduct and Support Systems:

Academic Conduct:
Plagiarism – presenting someone else’s ideas as your own, either verbatim or recast in your own words – is a serious academic offense with serious consequences. Please familiarize yourself with the discussion of plagiarism in SCampus in Part B, Section 11, “Behavior Violating University Standards” policy.usc.edu/scampus-part-b. Other forms of academic dishonesty are equally unacceptable. See additional information in SCampus and university policies on scientific misconduct, policy.usc.edu/scientific-misconduct.
