Course Description

Latin America is the region of the developing world with the greatest experience with democracy. It has also had considerable experience with populist leaders, military rulers, and a few important revolutions. And it has been the region of the world in which the influence of the United States has been greatest.

This course offers an introduction to politics in Latin America that addresses the variety of political experiences in the region. The course is divided into three parts. (1) It starts with a broad overview of the region that addresses the formation of modern states, nation building projects, the struggles to attain and maintain democracy, models of economic development (2) It turns next two countries (Chile and Argentina) that experienced military rule, took a strong stance on human rights, and served in various ways as models for the region. (3) Finally, it discusses two countries (Mexico and Cuba) that underwent revolutions in the 20th century, followed by prolonged periods of authoritarianism, and that currently face the challenge of attaining peace (in Mexico) and democracy (in Cuba). Where relevant, external influences, such as the role of the United States, are considered.

Learning Objectives

The objectives of the course are: (1) to introduce basic concepts used in the study of politics around the world (e.g. democracy, nation building, military regimes, models of economic development); (2) to introduce students to the main trends in Latin American politics and to some of the key political challenges currently faced by countries in Latin America; and (3) to learn how countries can be compared to each other.
Requirements, Grading Breakdown and Scale

Students are expected to complete the reading assignment for each topic. Students are also responsible for mastering the additional materials that are introduced in class, in power points that will be distributed after class.

Course grades are based on the following tests: four quizzes (15% of the overall grade), a first in-class quiz-based mid-term exam (15%), a second in-class essay-type mid-term exam (30%), and an in-class essay-type final exam (35%).

Academic Conduct and Support Systems

Academic Conduct

Plagiarism – presenting someone else’s ideas as your own, either verbatim or recast in your own words – is a serious academic offense with serious consequences. Please familiarize yourself with the discussion of plagiarism in SCampus in Section 11, Behavior Violating University Standards https://scampus.usc.edu/1100-behavior-violating-university-standards-and-appropriate-sanctions/. Other forms of academic dishonesty are equally unacceptable. See additional information in SCampus and university policies on scientific misconduct, http://policy.usc.edu/scientific-misconduct/.

Discrimination, sexual assault, and harassment are not tolerated by the university. You are encouraged to report any incidents to the Office of Equity and Diversity http://equity.usc.edu/ or to the Department of Public Safety http://capsnet.usc.edu/department/department-public-safety/online-forms/contact-us. This is important for the safety whole USC community. Another member of the university community – such as a friend, classmate, advisor, or faculty member – can help initiate the report, or can initiate the report on behalf of another person. The Center for Women and Men http://www.usc.edu/student-affairs/cwm/ provides 24/7 confidential support, and the sexual assault resource center webpage sarc@usc.edu describes reporting options and other resources.
