I. Course Description

This course examines the theory and practice of political campaign communication in the United States. A democracy has always depended on open and direct communication between its citizens and those who govern them. In the United States, this has been true since Colonial times. But with the advent of mass technologies, the range, depth, and importance of political communication practices have changed in revolutionary ways. Today, every White House administration, Congressional office, governor and issue advocacy group requires a sophisticated press office, dynamic field offices and robust advertising and digital media teams to build and sustain credible brands. The political arena itself has transformed into a financial hotbed for spin experts, pollsters, think tank leaders, investigative reporters, media handlers, advertising executives, and lobbyists — spanning the entire nation, perhaps even beyond its borders. Every participant within this arena contributes to the marketing of a candidate, public official, political party, ballot initiative, issue/cause or organization. They achieve these results through precise communication and marketing strategies that often prevail in the corporate realm. We will study these phenomena with due diligence and enthusiasm, and we will participate in these practices through challenging projects that promote practical application.

This is a “citizen’s course” that will challenge you to rethink your views of politics. Regardless of your political identification, this course will focus on the analytical aspects of effective campaign communication. You will never be penalized for respectfully advocating unique political perspectives nor for respectfully disagreeing with the readings or class discussions. Our primary goal in this class is to ask whether democracy is made better or worse, helped or hindered, by contemporary campaign communication practices and platforms. Students must be equipped to critically analyze and evaluate communication and marketing strategies that advance the goals of individuals and groups across the political spectrum. This course seeks to prepare students for such assessment, as well as season them to execute on their own.

The class will cover a variety of political campaign communication topics, allowing students to discover unique opportunities affecting political leaders and organizations of interest and to learn how to harness such knowledge. All students will be evaluated using a Letter Grade scale. Lectures vary between PPT slides and discussions of reading material. Students must take notes (handwritten or typed). Audio/video recordings of lectures are not permitted.

II. Student Learning Outcomes

This course will aim to achieve the following goals: 1) To achieve excellence in constructing and executing political communication strategy; 2) To acquire skills in managing platforms that affect campaign outcomes; 3) To strengthen skills in developing concise and potent campaign messaging; 4) To understand technique that can enhance a political brand and sell its value proposition to key stakeholders; 5) To understand the strategic challenges facing political candidates, parties and special interest groups; 6) To appreciate the unique dimensions and circumstances affecting presidential campaigns and elections.

We will demonstrate the highest attainable work ethic and discover within us that which is superior to circumstance. We will persevere this semester toward the most rewarding pursuit in higher education – the stimulation of thought, emotion, and soul. It is my duty to prepare you, as future leaders of the Free World, to integrate your communication skills into all fields of endeavor. As individuals and as a collective unit, we will dare to be great.

Required Preparation:

Recommended Preparation:

COMM 204, COMM 321, COMM 322

III. Course Attendance

Class will meet each Tuesday and Thursday throughout the semester. You must complete ALL course requirements in order to earn a grade in this course. You are responsible for giving presentations on the dates when you are scheduled. You are required to participate in debates on the dates when you are scheduled. Since your participation in this course – both as a speaker and listener – is vital, any absences from class will affect your final grade. You are, therefore, required to notify me BEFORE missing class and provide corresponding documentation AFTERWARD. In the event that both of these criteria are satisfied, you will receive “make up” assignments/projects to suffice for time missed from class. Please note that I will record an unexcused absence if you miss any considerable portion of the class period (arriving late, leaving early) without my prior authorization.

IV. Description and Assessment of Assignments

Jeffersonian-Madisonian Exchange	With a partner, you will debate, via weekly e-mail correspondence, various political campaign topics – affecting presidential, gubernatorial, congressional or local elections – that you and your peer deem important.
Political Advertising Project	As a group, you will choose a political candidate, ballot initiative, political party or special interest group that has some stake in the 2022 midterm election cycle (local, state, national), develop a 60-second video ad spot (narration and B-roll footage) for a preferred social media platform, and then submit a 2-3 page written proposal to key decision-makers (of the targeted political brand) on a key challenge they’re facing, what they need to overcome that challenge and why this ad spot helps moving things in the right direction. You will direct this proposal to top decision-makers, depending on where it stands on the product lifecycle and its relevance to the voter segments that you wish to target. You will explain any relevant themes and messages, included in the ad spot, that will advance any specific outcomes/goals.

Focus Group Project	As a group, you will conduct qualitative research, via a Focus Group, on a particular 2022 election involving candidates or a ballot initiative. You will develop a Screener to determine the participants, a recruiting list, a Re-Screener to validate the correct participations, a Moderator’s Guide and an Analysis of Key Findings & Strategic Recommendations.
Stump Speech	You will deliver a 5-8 minute Stump Speech to advocate in support or opposition of a political candidate, ballot initiative, political party or special interest group that has some stake in the 2022 midterm election cycle (local, state, national). You will focus on how that individual/entity will better or worsen the interests of the affected constituency. You must use Monroe’s Motivated Sequence design (template on Blackboard). In addition to having the class listen to your stump speech, you will invite at least two USC students (one who you expect will agree and one you expect will disagree with your position) to listen virtually.
Talking Points Briefing	You will individually draft talking points, written in memo format and directed to your candidate of choice, as a pre-campaign document to help your candidate launch their presidential exploratory committee. This memo will consist of a brief introduction, followed by bullet points that include specific recommendation on messaging and strategy.
Debate Analyses	As a group, you will write a report on the debate strategies, tactics and outcomes of one Presidential Debate or Vice Presidential Debate (assigned) to demonstrate your analytical prowess. As individuals, you will all participate in an in-class discussion of each debate, analyzing the strategies, tactics and outcomes of all three debates. You will focus heavily on analyzing the effective and ineffective executions of both candidates in your in-class analyses. The assigned group will serve as the primary analysts while the remaining class members will serve on the general panel.
Strategic Plan & SWOT Analysis	You will write a report to the chief decision-makers of a political candidate, political party or special interest group, formally endorsing a plan to advance concrete political action on behalf of that individual/entity that will culminate via a future election. The purpose of this assignment is to demonstrate your understanding of the individual/entity itself, the value proposition to the targeted voters, and the impact of this victory on relevant stakeholders. You will write a 2-page executive summary, as well as a 4-8 page SWOT Analysis (Strengths, Weaknesses, Opportunities, Threats) on the individual/entity’s behalf – including how the individual/entity is accurately perceived by targeted voters, what will make this individual/entity uniquely viable in the upcoming election cycle, which advertising mediums will be most effective, which branding challenges are most critical, which messages will resonate most, where voter interests/preferences are heading, and how the individual/entity will fare across the competitive landscape in meeting those interests/preferences.

V. Grading

a. Breakdown of Grade

Assignment	Points	% of Grade

D Level Grades or Below	Demonstrates insufficient work performance and organizational skills, as well as an insufficient understanding of subject matter and/or project requirements; including a deficiency in fulfilling expectations in written/verbal communication, research methodologies, knowledge of material and practical application.

d. Grading Timeline

I make myself available to review any project work if student sends me a complete rough draft at least one week prior to the due date (or delivery date). Most projects are graded within one to two weeks of the assignment being completed by all students (note: presentations are not always delivered on the same date). I offer extensive feedback on my evaluation forms for presentations.

VI. Assignment Rubrics

Assignment rubrics are discussed individually during class.

VII. Assignment Submission Policy

All assignments are posted on Blackboard with detailed instructions and due dates. Students are expected to complete all assignments on time. Late work, if accepted, may be penalized. Typically, late submissions will result in 10% grade deduction per day late. Lacking prior discussion and agreement with me of any late assignment may result in the student receiving a grade of F for that late assignment. Assignments must be submitted via e-mail with Word, PPT or PDF attachments (not Google Drive, not Blackboard, not MAM).

XII. Additional Class Policies and Procedures

a. Technology

Using laptops and/or mobile device to access the Internet and/or e-mail during class time to partake in non-class-related activity is not permitted. Any violation of this policy may result in the loss of all participation points for the entire semester, as well as other measures under university policy.

b. Late Submissions

Late submissions on assignments will result in a 10% grade deduction for every day late.

c. Student Conduct

Class behavior will be predicated on an environment of mutual respect. Any level of disruptive or threatening student behavior is unacceptable. We are here to learn from each other in a non-threatening environment. You are encouraged to formulate and share opinions with due discretion, as well as be comfortable in practicing communication techniques and debating ideas in a safe environment. However, any behavior that is deemed disrespectful by the instructor will affect your participation points.

d. Lecture Slides & Notes

Lecture slides are not posted, so students are encouraged to attend all classes and take thorough notes. Students may request a review of prior material, which often occurs periodically throughout the semester.

XIII. Communication

Please e-mail, text or call me with any questions or concerns about anything related to the class and/or career planning, especially if you are unable to meet during my office hours. I typically respond fastest via e-mail (within 24-48 hours), and I'm interested in helping you with anything on your mind.

XIV. Academic Conduct and Support Systems

a. Academic Integrity & Conduct

The Annenberg School for Communication is committed to upholding the University's academic integrity code as detailed in the SCampus guide. It is the policy of the School of Communication to report all violations of the code. Any serious violation or pattern of violations of the academic integrity code will result in the student's expulsion from the Communication major or minor. If you have any doubts about what is and is not an academic integrity violation, please check with me immediately. The University presumes that you are familiar with its standards and policies; should you be found to have committed a violation, ignorance of these standards and policies will not be accepted as an excuse.

Plagiarism – presenting someone else's ideas as your own, either verbatim or recast in your own words – is a serious academic offense with serious consequences. Please familiarize yourself with the discussion of plagiarism in SCampus in Part B, Section 11, “Behavior Violating University Standards” policy.usc.edu/scampus-part-b. Other forms of academic dishonesty are equally unacceptable. See additional information in SCampus and university policies on scientific misconduct, policy.usc.edu/scientific-misconduct.
