Course Description

This course is an advanced graduate seminar covering issues of race and racism in the field of evolutionary biology. The scientific core of evolutionary biology is the study and appreciation of biological diversity, and yet evolutionary ideas have been used to support racist ideologies. Course topics include biological concepts of race and ancestry, the history of eugenics, race and intelligence/aptitude tests, race-based medicine and strategies for increasing diversity in STEM. This course is appropriate for graduate students at all levels as well as advanced undergraduates with an interest in evolutionary biology.

Learning Objectives

After completing this course students will be able to:

- Describe how biological views on “human races” have changed over time
- Explain distinctions between race, ancestry and ethnicity
- Discuss the history of eugenics, including its modern incarnations
- Critique the assumptions of intelligence and aptitude tests
- Debate the virtues of race-based medicine
- Analyze barriers to diversity in STEM

Prerequisite(s): none

Co-Requisite(s): none

Concurrent Enrollment: none

Recommended Preparation: Previous coursework and/or research experience in genetics and evolutionary biology is helpful but not required.

Course Notes

Letter grade. Course is expected to be conducted by live (synchronous) Zoom sessions via Blackboard. Classes will also be recorded and available on Blackboard.

Required Readings and Supplementary Materials

Gould SJ. 1996. The Mismeasure of Man, Norton & Co. (NY) – do not get the original 1981 version!

Other readings as assigned will be available via Blackboard.

Description and Assessment of Assignments

Students will take turns leading presentations of the weekly material – the number of individual and group presentations will depend on the class size. Two writing assignments will be given: 1) an op-ed, targeted at a newspaper, on a recent re-naming controversy involving a eugenicist (such as Jordan Hall at Stanford or the Von KleinSmid Center at USC), and 2) an editorial, targeted at a science education journal, on how high school biology classes should address the issue of racial classification in humans. A detailed rubric for presentations and writing assignments will be provided on Blackboard.

Grading Breakdown

Grades will be based on writing assignments (2*20%), presentations (45%) and participation in class discussions (15%).

Assignment	Points	% of Grade
Op-ed writing assignment	40	20
Editorial writing assignment	40	20
Weekly presentations
No. presentations TBD	90	45
Participation	30	15
TOTAL	200	100

Assignment Submission Policy

Writing assignments will be submitted to the instructor by e-mail. Maximum credit will be reduced by 10% for every day the assignment is late unless the student has obtained prior approval from the instructor.

Statement on Academic Conduct and Support Systems

USC seeks to maintain an optimal learning environment. General principles of academic honesty include the concept of respect for the intellectual property of others, the expectation that individual work will be submitted unless otherwise allowed by an instructor, and the obligations both to protect one's own academic work from misuse by others as well as to avoid using another's work as one's own.

Academic Conduct:

Plagiarism – presenting someone else's ideas as your own, either verbatim or recast in your own words – is a serious academic offense with serious consequences. Please familiarize yourself with the discussion of plagiarism in SCampus in Part B, Section 11, "Behavior Violating University Standards" policy.usc.edu/scampus-part-b. Other forms of academic dishonesty are equally unacceptable. See additional information in SCampus and university policies on scientific misconduct, <http://policy.usc.edu/scientific-misconduct>.
