Course Description

In this class, we will examine media that is created and published by today's public relations practitioner. New platforms have enabled brands, organizations and individuals to become publishers and directly engage their audiences. This class examines strategies and tactics needed to be an effective publisher including digital content created for social and owned media channels.

This course is designed to teach students about the array of public relations tools available to them, with particular emphasis on writing, digital content creation and production of communications collateral. Students will be exposed to audience research and segmentation, social media and digital communications writing, multi-media content creation, feature writing, newsletter preparation, basic principles of design, writing for the ear, creating and making presentations and brainstorming. Case histories will illuminate the use of these tools and examples of materials will be used extensively throughout the course. This is a lab course; a great deal of hands-on activities such as writing, graphic design, video production and oral presentations will be assigned.

Student Learning Outcomes

Students will leave this course prepared to:

- Research, write and edit professional-quality social media content, videos, newsletters, and PR controlled content for external and internal audiences.
- Execute basic promotional video production for product demonstrations, crisis response and other PR driven scenarios.
- Execute basic design and layout; understand design software.
- Produce visual elements such as photos, graphics, infographics, special effects and motion graphics.
- Identify and communicate with an array of audiences.

Course Elements

In-class writing, content creation and video production assignments

- Take-home writing and content creation assignments
- Midterm
- Final project
- Participation
- Reading

Description and Assessment of Assignments

In addition to take-home and in-class writing and design assignments, there will be a midterm and a final project. There will also be weekly group presentations as described below.

Case study presentations

Students are encouraged to read the weekly trade publications AdWeek and PRWeek, or spend time observing PR campaigns in whatever field they are interested in. Each student will be required to present an analysis and critique of brand storytelling campaigns either from those publications or based on a current campaign of your choosing. The presentations will be done by two students each week starting on week 3. The presentation should be at least 5 minutes long and include:

- Summary of the campaign
- Thoughts on the strategy and target audiences
- Campaign messaging/storytelling
- Discussion of all campaign elements including breaking down the production
- Overall critique and suggested changes

Grading

a. Breakdown of Grade

Assignment	% of Grade
Assignments	25%
Midterm	25%
Class Participation	10%
Final Project	40%
TOTAL	100%

b. Grading Scale

95% to 100%: A	80% to 83%: B-	67% to 69%: D+
90% to 94%: A-	77% to 79%: C+	64% to 66%: D
87% to 89%: B+	74% to 76%: C	60% to 63%: D-
84% to 86%: B	70% to 73%: C-	0% to 59%: F

c. Grading Standards

Public Relations

“A” projects have writing near professional quality; one or no mistakes; clearly proofread and edited material. All required elements included (catchy headline, solid lead, varied vocabulary; supporting facts/figures; quotes as required). Excellent organization and flow; original thinking. Showed creativity in packaging/distribution method. High end of scale: publishable today as is.

“B” projects have two to five spelling, grammar or AP Style mistakes. One or more required elements missing or poorly displayed (i.e., boring headline; confusing lead, etc.). Shows potential as a good writer. Adhered to inverted pyramid. High end of scale will have at least one extraordinary element such as astonishing lead or little-known facts or pithy quote. Some creativity shown. Publishable with medium editing.

“C” projects have more than five errors (spelling, grammar, AP style). Poorly edited and/or proofread. May have adhered to inverted pyramid but strayed at beginning or end. Hackneyed elements such as trite headline or uninteresting lead. Little or no facts/figures included. Passive rather than active verbs become the norm. Little or no creativity shown. Publishable with major editing.

“D” projects have more than 10 errors (spelling, grammar). Needs to be completely rewritten. Poorly organized with little or no understanding of journalistic style/standards. Needs to work with writing coach.

“F” projects are not rewritable, late or not turned in. A grade of F also will be assigned for any plagiarized and/or fabricated material that is submitted.

d. Grading Timeline

Assignments will be graded and returned within two weeks from the time they were turned in. All feedback will be sent to the student via e-mail. Allow about two to three weeks for feedback from your final project.

Assignment Submission Policy

A. All assignments are due on the dates specified. Lacking prior discussion and agreement with the instructor, late assignments will automatically be dropped one grade (10 points). Assignments that are two weeks late will be dropped two grades (20 points). No late assignments will be accepted after two weeks and are an automatic zero.
B. Assignments must be submitted via email or Blackboard. Your instructor will provide instructions on how to submit your assignments.

Required Readings and Supplementary Materials

Reading assignments will be posted to Blackboard throughout the semester, along with handouts and other readings.

Laptop Policy

All undergraduate and graduate Annenberg majors and minors are required to have a PC or Apple laptop that can be used in Annenberg classes. Please refer to the Annenberg Digital Lounge for more information. To connect to USC's Secure Wireless network, please visit USC's Information Technology Services website.

Course Schedule: A Weekly Breakdown

Important note to students: Be advised that this syllabus is subject to change - and probably will change - based on the progress of the class, news events, and/or guest speaker availability.

Week 1 – Aug. 25 – Presentation of Syllabus; Overview of Class Projects

The syllabus will be presented along with the course description and expectations. We will explore what content creation means for today's public relations practitioner, how and when it is used, and what forms we will be addressing in class. There will be an overview of final term projects and a quick writing assignment.

Also, we will talk about the importance of storytelling and telling a good story. What makes a story compelling?

In-class assignment: Write about your favorite food. Why is it your favorite food? Does it have a special meaning, a sentimental story, or a cultural or family significance? This will be a timed assignment, about 10-15 minutes.

Homework assignment: Find a job description for a position or internship you're interested in. Write a cover letter applying to that job opening or internship. How will you introduce yourself with the written word? How will your cover page stand out from the many in my email box? What will get me to read yours? (This will not be given a letter grade; you will get credit for class participation upon turning this assignment in.)

Also, bring to the next session an example of a piece of content you consider to be "well written." You should be prepared to discuss why you believe your chosen piece is well written. PLEASE NOTE: you are not doing a big report; I am looking for a general discussion of content, but your comments should center on those elements that led to your choosing this piece.

Week 2 – Sept. 1 – What Constitutes "Well Written?"

This class will examine the fundamentals of good writing. Is it an exact science? Do we adhere to the strict "inverted pyramid" format you learned in 209 and 351a? The structure of good storytelling will be examined for long-form content, blog posts, and short social media content. Each student will present her/ his selected piece of content from the homework assignment and explain why he/she considers it to be well written. From that discussion, we'll devise the Tenets of Good Writing for this course.

In-class writing assignment: In small groups, critique your classmates' cover letters and offer suggestions.

Homework assignment: Rewrite your cover letter and incorporate the feedback from your classmates and from your instructor.

Week 3 – Sept. 8 – Know Thy Audience

CASE STUDY PRESENTATIONS BEGIN!

To be effective writers and content creators, it is important to understand who you are communicating to and their demographic characteristics. Students will learn how to research and segment audiences.

We'll explore how GenZ, GenY, GenX differ from Baby Boomers; how age, ethnicity, gender, geography, sexual orientation and culture factor into messaging; and which audiences you will likely encounter in conducting public relations efforts in the field.

In-class assignment: Working in assigned teams, you will be assigned a prompt and two different audience targets. Think of a campaign that will cater to the separate audiences and be prepared to explain why your campaign is appropriate to those audiences.

Homework assignment: Find and bring to the next class a persuasive article.

Week 4 – Sept. 15 – Feature and Persuasive Writing and the Power of the Word

The written word is very powerful. It can shape and change minds. Persuasive writing can initiate action and change. Persuasive, well-written ideas are the essence of multi-media content. We will first review some of the examples of persuasive writing that you brought to class and discuss what makes them – and other forms of communication – persuasive. Also, building on the principles learned in 351A, we will discuss the nuances of feature writing. We'll discuss human-interest articles, editorial and opinion pieces, humor, irony and an array of feature writing techniques.

In-class assignment: Practice writing strong, compact persuasive copy: develop three to five messages (about two to four sentences in length) for two separate organizations identified by the instructor.

Homework assignment: Write a 400-word persuasive article on a topic of your choice. Also, bring an example of a well-written company blog post to class.

Week 5 – Sept. 22 – Online accessibility / Writing content for online and social media.

Did you know that a large portion of internet content is inaccessible to people with disabilities? Disabilities aren't limited to things like deafness or blindness – they can be temporary (like a broken hand that renders you unable to use a keyboard, or the classic situation where you're in a room where you can't turn your volume on and you don't have headphones on hand). We'll discuss the importance of making your content web accessible, not only on websites but also on social media. Our guest speaker is an expert on web accessibility and will offer tips and insight on alt text, best practices for videos, and other things you may not have been aware of.

We will review the differences between writing that is meant to live online vs. traditional writing consumed in the physical world. Emphasis will be on content and overall design, with some very basic review of technical challenges and requirements. TikTok, Twitter, Facebook, Snapchat stories, Instagram and IG Stories, and other social media and online platforms play an important role in communications. We'll examine an array of digital communications to find out what works and what doesn't. We will examine how different organizations – non-profits, consumer brands, advocacy groups – use social media platforms to achieve strategic PR goals. We will explore purpose, audience and voice of social media engagement across different platforms and organization sectors.

Guest speaker: Alexa Heinrich, web accessibility expert, therealalexa.com

Homework assignment: Bring an example of a newsletter to class. It can be an electronic or printed.

Week 6 – Sept. 29 – Newsletters and Brochures

Due to digital advances in both production and printing, online newsletters and brochures are thriving. What are they? Why do they work? Who reads them? When don't they work? How are the digital consumption habits changing the style and content of newsletters and brochures? We will review the newsletters you brought to class and discuss them as a group. We will discuss the fundamentals of newsletter design, layout and distribution.

In-class writing assignment: Create an edition of an e-newsletter. Topic is your choice.

Week 7 – Oct. 6 – Midterm

Speed is of the essence sometimes in PR. The world we live in requires practitioners to be able to develop content and get it out quickly across many platforms, since conversations, promotions, and crisis occur in real time.

You will be given a prompt and be asked to write pieces of varying lengths based on the prompt.

Week 8 – Oct. 13 – NO CLASSES, ENJOY YOUR FALL BREAK!

Week 9 – Oct. 20 – Intro to Design and Useful Design Tools

There are various programs out there that help you with design, such as Canva and Adobe Spark. But if you find you're starting to see some of the same graphics over and over again because these programs are in heavy use, you'll have to learn some basics in Photoshop and Illustrator. We'll go over some basics in both these programs to help you step up your design game and make simple graphics.

Week 10 – Oct. 27 – Principles of Layout and Design – InDesign Tutorial

This session was developed to help you communicate with professional designers in the language they understand and to prepare you for working with them.

In-class workshop: We will learn some of the basic elements of design during this hands-on workshop. You'll learn InDesign, how to import photos/images, work with text and how to select and use color.

Homework assignment: Taking the newsletter content you wrote in class previously, design an e-newsletter with this content.

Week 11 – Nov. 3 – The Art of the Infographic

During this class session, we also will explore visual literacy and we will discuss and understand why it is important to visualize data and how best to apply the various tools used to do it.

In-class assignment: We will design an infographic in small groups.

Homework assignment: Create an infographic on a topic of your choosing.

Week 12 – Nov. 10 – Video Production

For this class session, we will begin our module on Video Production by starting with the storyboard. Most PR videos don't just evolve; they are based on careful planning. We'll also talk about tools you can use to shoot footage more easily from mobile devices and edit footage, plus resources for music and archival footage and graphics.

Homework: Work on your term project. Review sections from online iMovie video tutorials on both on LinkedIn Learning and on AnnenbergDL.org

Week 13 – Nov. 17 – Web/digital considerations

At some point, you'll have to manage a client's site or create one on your own. What are the best ways to manage this? We'll build upon the ideas you learned in 351a and consider other ways to build a digital presence. Also, if you want to create a portfolio for yourself, how should you go about doing it and what should go in it?

Also, learning basic HTML and CSS. Even if you never aspire to code, learning the basics of HTML is important for those times when you need to fix something in WordPress, Squarespace, or Wix that can't be fixed in the visual editor.

Week 14 – Nov. 24 – NO CLASSES, ENJOY YOUR FALL BREAK!

Week 15 – Dec. 1 – Bringing it all together

Open lab, planning for final project.

Final Exam Period – Tues., Dec. 13, 11 a.m.-1 p.m. – Presentation of Term Projects & Final Term Projects Due

Policies and Procedures

Additional Policies

If you must miss a class, please give ample notice to your instructor via email. You will be responsible for catching up on any missed material and make any arrangements you need to catch up in class.

No late assignments will be accepted unless you have a medical emergency or other excused absence. Documentation for any excused absence must be provided.

Communication

Please make sure to check your USC email regularly. It will be the primary means of communication between you and your instructor. If you have any questions, please feel free to email your instructor or come speak to your instructor before or after class or make an appointment.

Internships

The value of professional internships as part of the overall educational experience of our students has long been recognized by the School of Journalism. Accordingly, while internships are not required for successful completion of this course, any student enrolled in this course that undertakes and completes an approved, non-paid internship during this semester shall earn academic extra credit herein of an amount equal to 1 percent of the total available semester points for this course. To receive instructor approval, a student must request an internship letter from the Annenberg Career Development Office and bring it to the instructor to sign by the end of the third week of classes. The student must submit the signed letter to the media organization, along with the evaluation form provided by the Career Development Office. The form should be filled out by the intern supervisor and returned to the instructor at the end of the semester. No credit will be given if an evaluation form is not turned into the instructor by the last day of class. Note: The internship must be unpaid and can only be applied to one journalism or public relations class.

Statement on Academic Conduct and Support Systems

a. Academic Conduct

Plagiarism

Plagiarism – presenting someone else’s ideas as your own, either verbatim or recast in your own words – is a serious academic offense with serious consequences. Please familiarize yourself with the discussion of plagiarism in SCampus in Part B, Section 11, “Behavior Violating University Standards” policy.usc.edu/scampus-part-b. Other forms of academic dishonesty are equally unacceptable. See additional information in SCampus and university policies on scientific misconduct, <https://policy.usc.edu/research-and-scholarship-misconduct/>.

USC School of Journalism Policy on Academic Integrity

The following is the USC Annenberg School of Journalism’s policy on academic integrity and repeated in the syllabus for every course in the school:

“Since its founding, the USC School of Journalism has maintained a commitment to the highest standards of ethical conduct and academic excellence. Any student found plagiarizing, fabricating, cheating on examinations, and/or purchasing papers or other assignments faces sanctions ranging from an ‘F’ on the assignment to dismissal from the School of Journalism. All academic integrity violations will be reported to the office of Student Judicial Affairs & Community Standards (SJACS), as per university policy, as well as journalism school administrators.”

In addition, it is assumed that the work you submit for this course is work you have produced entirely by yourself, and has not been previously produced by you for submission in another course or Learning Lab, without approval of the instructor.

Awards are distributed to students experiencing unforeseen circumstances and emergencies impacting their ability to pay tuition or cover everyday living expenses. These awards are not intended to cover full-tuition expenses, but rather serve as bridge funding to guarantee students' continued enrollment at USC until other resources, such as scholarships or loans, become available. Students are encouraged to provide as much information in their application, as well as contact their academic advisor directly with questions about additional resources available to them.

About Your Instructor

Jenn de la Fuente is a web developer with a graphic design background. She has run her own business, Rosebud Designs, since 2009 and developed a variety of print and web collateral for a range of clients, from nonprofits to small businesses. Her specialty is creating custom WordPress websites, and she has teamed up with other design firms and design businesses to create solutions for clients such as Invisible People, Rancho La Puerta, Heal the Bay, 826 Los Angeles, and 826 National. Before starting her business, Jenn worked in sports journalism as a reporter, copy editor, page designer, and web producer for a variety of newspapers: the Orange County Register, The News Journal (Wilmington, Delaware), and The Sacramento Bee. She holds a Bachelor of Arts in Print Journalism from USC Annenberg, graduating in 2000, and has taught at Annenberg since 2014. She is an avid sports fan, longtime Trojan football season ticket-holder, a huge L.A. Kings fan, as well as a hockey player and curler.
