Catalog Description
The practice and aesthetics of international dance styles through lecture and participant-driven interaction.

Course Overview
This course welcomes students into a conversation about dance that is global in scope, but highly local (even personal) in impact. By challenging Eurocentric frameworks that privilege the ethnically, and culturally, specific dance forms coming from the Global North, we emphasize the multiplicity of approaches to embodied meaning-making across and within cultural contexts. Introducing (and/or) unpacking terms such as tradition, authenticity, diaspora, indigeneity, post-coloniality, and more, we will develop a vocabulary with which to tackle complex issues regarding embodiment, identity, and – ultimately – resistance. Understanding that we are citizens in an increasingly interdependent and interconnected world, the course broadens the student’s perspective on contexts, purposes, and worldviews embedded in dancing. Guest artists (experts in various disciplines) will augment learning through demonstration and shared knowledge of respective dance traditions.

Learning Objectives
- Students will gain familiarity with key terms, issues, and conversations in dance studies that reflect a contemporary perspective on the global
- Students will contextualize key terms within their own lived experience, valorizing the body’s role in knowledge production and meaning-making
- Students will read critically and with the intention of generating comments and questions within an inclusive group dialogue
- Students will become familiar with at least one unfamiliar dance style through embodied experience
- Students will produce a polished piece of writing that demonstrates engagement with a new dance form, and the cultural values sustaining it
Students will collaborate on a group presentation that identifies parallels and contrasts between various forms of dance.

Primary Course readings will be drawn from:

Additional Readings:

Description of Assessments
Readings and Viewings:
Students should complete the assigned reading or viewing before the class for which it is listed. The majority of course readings will come from the two collected volumes listed above, available online through USC Libraries. Additional articles will be posted on the course Blackboard page. Readings will serve as valuable resources, but as dance remains deeply rooted in embodied practice, watching and experiencing through in-class activities and videos will also inform our approach. Accordingly, visual media will often serve as vital primary materials for the course and, like lectures and reading materials, may be the basis of questions on exams. Students are encouraged to engage with additional media in conjunction with their readings.

Attendance and Participation:
To succeed in this class, students must be present, prepared, and ready to engage with course material. Viewing, discussion, and class activities figure greatly. Participation and preparation will be evaluated regularly with in-class exercises.

Active participation includes adhering to standard classroom etiquette: no sleeping, no unrelated internet browsing, and no private discussion. Students are expected to engage fully in group discussions and activities, to ask thoughtful questions, to come to class fully prepared, and to exercise personal responsibility and consideration of others at all times.
As regards the use of devices, a collaboratively-devised technology policy will be established in the first few sessions of the course. The instructor reserves the right to amend or revise this policy at any time.

Talking Points:
The course is designed to forefront dialogue, and each student is expected to undertake close readings of required texts before class. However, at scheduled intervals, students will prepare 5 “talking points” prior to class. The talking points may be comments or questions. When quoting or paraphrasing, students should be as specific as possible and reference texts with full bibliographic information. Rubric to be distributed separately.

Midterm Reflection Paper:
Pick one “key term” from the course (i.e., “folk,” “authenticity,” “tradition,” “diaspora,” etc.) and discuss how your understanding of the terms has been awakened, deepened, or changed by your engagement with the course. You are expected to explore these terms in their complexity rather than seeking simplification through definition. You are expected to draw on and valorize your own lived, embodied experience to address why such terms would be meaningful in the context of your studies in dance. Full rubric to be distributed separately.

Final Exam:
Exams will be scheduled in 24-hour windows so that students may complete them remotely. Exams are open book (notes, reading, and slides must be handwritten or typed and printed out), and will evaluate your self-directed exploration of the material.

Final Exam: Monday, December 12

Final Paper & Presentation
*Full rubrics to be distributed separately

Phase 1, written assignment: Students will conduct research on a dance tradition NOT familiar to them. With at least 2 scholarly sources (in addition to any chosen popular sources), the paper will demonstrate critical engagement with the subject matter (i.e. evidence of original thinking) as well as careful engagement with, and thoughtful integrations of, existing scholarship, including materials presented in class. Additionally, students will be required to integrate at least one embodied experience (performance, class, workshop, lecture demonstration, etc.). The paper should demonstrate ample preparation, be organized, polished, and proofread. Due December 5.

3 pages, Times New Roman, 12-point font, double-spaced, 1-inch margins, default character spacing, proper citations (in format of student’s choice). Final Paper will be submitted via Blackboard by midnight (end of the day) on the due date. Students are not permitted to share documents with the professor via communal drives such as Google. No extensions will be granted; see individual rubric (posted to course Blackboard page) for more information, including late submission policy.

Phase 2, presentation: Working within a designated group, students will present their findings and stage a dialogue bringing together insights from multiple traditions/experiences. The primary expectation is that the group address differences and similarities between forms across at least one specific category – use of a specific body part, rhythmic structure, cultural context, worldview, etc. Groups should meet well in advance of the presentation date to discuss paper topics, uncover points of connection, and craft a presentation that brings all participants’ work into dialogue. PowerPoint, Prezi, or other visual media optional. Embodied performance optional.

Emergency Plan

In the event of a university-wide emergency, guidance and directions will be shared by Campus Emergency Operations in all available outlets, including the website and TrojanAlerts. Students are encouraged to maintain close contact with all available communications avenues for updates to university operations. USC Kaufman will abide by all university protocols and recommendations. If the Kaufman Dance Center is not available when classes resume, students can receive updates from the school’s Departmental Operations Center (DOC) on Ramo Lawn (between the Thornton School of Music and Norris Cinema, close to the Bing Theatre).

University Policies

Technological Proficiency and Hardware/Software Required

Students will need an electronic device with access to Zoom and Blackboard for this course. They are asked to familiarize themselves with these two interfaces. Please see the links below for technology support.

USC Technology Support Links

- Zoom information for students
- Blackboard help for students
- Software available to USC Campus

USC Technology Rental Program

We realize that attending classes online and completing coursework remotely requires access to technology that not all students possess. If you need resources to successfully participate in your classes, such as a laptop or internet hotspot, you may be eligible for the university’s equipment rental program. To apply, please submit an application. The Student Basic Needs team will contact all applicants in early August and distribute equipment to eligible applicants prior to the start of the fall semester.

USC’s Nine International Offices
Support for international students is also available through USC’s offices in Beijing, Shanghai, Hong Kong and South China, Taiwan, South Korea, India, UK and Europe, Brazil, and Mexico. Additional details and contact information can be found at https://global.usc.edu/global-presence/international-offices/.

Academic Conduct and Support Systems

Academic Conduct:
Plagiarism – presenting someone else’s ideas as your own, either verbatim or recast in your own words – is a serious academic offense with serious consequences. Please familiarize yourself with the discussion of plagiarism in [SCampus in Part B, Section 11](SCampus in Part B, Section 11), “Behavior Violating University Standards.” Other forms of academic dishonesty are equally unacceptable. See additional information in [SCampus and university policies](SCampus and university policies) on scientific misconduct.

Support Systems:
- Counseling and Mental Health
  phone number (213) 740-9355 (WELL)
  On call 24/7 - Free and confidential mental health treatment for students, including short-term psychotherapy, group counseling, stress fitness workshops, and crisis intervention.

  National Suicide Prevention Lifeline
