Catalogue Description
The process of video game production. Video game history, genres, development process (concept, preproduction, production, and post-production) and roles (producers, artists, programmers, etc.).

Course Description
Video Game Production will help students gain a hands-on understanding of the process of developing video games, with an emphasis on production and project management. Students will be introduced to the many facets of video game production including design, art, programming, and management. The course will introduce and include various hardware and software tools and processes involved in the video game production process.

Learning Objectives
By the end of this course, students will be able to:
1. Recognize common hardware and software tools involved in the creation of games.
2. Differentiate the various roles in video game development.
3. Design the project production lifecycle and customize it for the specific needs of a game development studio.
4. Interact with specific video game development roles such as marketing, art, audio, narrative, design, software engineering and usability.
5. Break down how team roles, as well as software and hardware constraints and tools, have shaped the production of past games.
6. Analyze video games to identify the hallmarks of successful production and critique failures of process.

Prerequisite(s): n/a
Co-Requisite(s): n/a
Concurrent Enrollment: n/a
Recommended Preparation: ITP 101 recommended.

Course Notes
Lecture slides and course content, including homework, will be posted to the course Blackboard page. Course announcements will be posted as an announcement to Blackboard or emailed directly to your USC emails.

Technological Proficiency and Hardware/Software Required
Students are expected to be able to perform the following tasks before the course begins:

Description and Assessment of Assignments

In-Class Presentation
The first classroom presentation will involve a brief overview of a commercial title, its genre, market, reception, and production challenges. Timing of presentations will be scheduled in the first week.

Production Role Essay
The first written assignment will be to choose and describe a role involved in the modern process of creating, developing, and bringing a major video game to market, including the training and responsibilities of that role.

Production Contrast Essay
The second written assignment will compare and contrast a current commercial title with an older title of a similar genre, with a focus on considering the different production challenges faced by each.

High-Level Pitch
The final written assignment will be a high-concept game pitch, with a focus on the production challenges posed by that game, and a high-level development plan including project milestones.

Class Participation
Students are expected to contribute meaningfully to in-class discussions, drawing connections between assigned and supplemental readings to the week’s topics, and sharing those connections with the class.

Final Pitch Presentation
The final written pitch will also be presented to the class for feedback during the final class session.

Assignment Submission Policy
All homework assignments will be submitted via Blackboard. Assignments submitted via email will not be accepted.

Remote learning Policies/Zoom etiquette
During remote teaching situations, classes will meet via Zoom. Students are expected to participate via microphones and camera whenever possible.

Homework presentations will be done using screen sharing, and live coding challenges will leverage the virtual whiteboard in Zoom.

Additional Policies
The only acceptable excuses for missing an assignment deadline or taking an incomplete in the course are personal illness or a family emergency. Students must inform the instructors before the assignment due date and present verifiable evidence for a deadline extension to be granted.

In-class assessments and presentations cannot be rescheduled (except for an unforeseeable event) as this will disrupt the course schedule. If you know you will be missing any classes at the beginning of the semester, please tell the instructor as soon as possible.

Synchronous session recording notice
During remote teaching situations, the Zoom courses will be recorded, and these recordings will be shared with the class. While this will not entirely replace in-class participation, these recorded classes will allow students to catch up on lectures they were unable to attend as well as for useful review.

Sharing of course materials outside of the learning environment
SCampus Section 11.12(B)

Distribution or use of notes or recordings based on university classes or lectures without the express permission of the instructor for purposes other than individual or group study is a violation of the USC Student Conduct Code. This includes, but is not limited to, providing materials for distribution by services publishing class notes. This restriction on unauthorized use also applies to all information, which had been distributed to students or in any way had been displayed for use in relationship to the class, whether obtained in class, via email, on the Internet or via any other media. (See Section C.1 Class Notes Policy).
