Meeting: RRI 101

Thursday 4pm-4:50pm (Lecture)

Friday 12pm-12:50pm (Seminar)

Course director: Xianrui Cheng

Office: RRI 119B

email: xianruic@usc.edu

Course Objectives: The course objectives are to advance the training of molecular biology PhD students in reading primary journal articles. Emphasis will be on honing critical reading skills.

Format:

- Weekly journal club – taken in year 1.
- The faculty of record for this class will also organize the weekly MCB seminar series.
- Students are required to attend the weekly MCB seminar to receive credit for this class – attendance will be taken via sign-up sheet at each seminar.
- The faculty of record for this class will recruit a faculty member for each week to run the journal club.
- All MCB faculty are required to do this at least once per year.
- Weeks where we have a MCB speaker, the host for the speaker will run the journal club, and the paper should be from the speaker. Interested students can then meet with the speaker, ideally at shared lunch.
- If the faculty member hosting the seminar speaker has already run one journal club that semester, then running additional journal clubs is optional, but encouraged.

Grading: Credit/no credit.
