Catalogue Description

Seminar on the design patterns and mechanics of successful tabletop games including trends in gaming content, tools, business and culture.

Course Description

Tabletop gaming has been an important part of the human experience since prehistory, and is experiencing an extended renaissance, blossoming into a multi-billion-dollar industry that now overlaps with the electronic gaming market. Students of game design will find it useful to study the design elements and development of tabletop games, which often pare game mechanics to design fundamentals, and integrate these elements in their own endeavors. General education students will gain a basic literacy in and appreciation of tabletop games and the vocabulary and understanding to discuss the mechanics and styles of tabletop play in a meaningful fashion.

This course explores the design of tabletop games, including all manner of games that are primarily non-digital in nature. Using traditional, popular and successful tabletop games as case studies, we will build a shared vocabulary of mechanics and use that to discuss the elements and design patterns that make up successful games in the tabletop space.

Learning Objectives

Upon completion of this course, students will be familiar with a wide range of tabletop games and the vocabulary and mechanics critical to discussing their design. Using mechanics as the primary gateway to understanding play loops, students will be able to analyze these games using thematic, mechanical and experiential perspectives. Students will be able to articulate the elements of tabletop games and perform comparative analysis of tabletop games in both presentations and written papers.

Prerequisite(s): none

Co-Requisite(s): none

Concurrent Enrollment: none

Recommended Preparation: none

Course Notes

Syllabus is posted on Blackboard and the class shared Google Drive. Group and individual assignments will be assigned through Blackboard and must be submitted through Blackboard for grading. Presentation assignments must also be submitted to the shared Google Drive per the Assignment Submission Policy below. As a COVID-safe supplement to physical gameplay and analysis, proficiency in Tabletop Simulator is recommended.

Technological Proficiency and Hardware/Software Required

Students should have access to Tabletop Simulator available through Steam Powered.com. Students must also be able to collaborate on visual presentations through a platform such as Google Slides, and post presentations to the shared Google Drive.

Required Readings and Supplementary Materials

Students are not required to purchase any books for this course, but should have access to the Tabletop Simulator software. Tabletop games, comprised of play materials and documentation, will be used for group and individual assignments. Physical game copies of certain games may be checked out from the USC Games Front Desk (SCI 201). Digital games can be explored using platforms such as Board Game Arena or Tabletop Simulator and the associated Steam Workshop.

Optional readings may be distributed as hyperlinks, and students may explore other platforms for the digital play of tabletop games, including sites such as BoardGameArena.com, Tabletopia, and dedicated apps.

Description and Assessment of Assignments

Assignment 1 – 4: Group Game Analysis Presentation

Students will work in groups to contribute to a presentation about a game the group has learned, studied, and played during the preceding week. Presentations will be made during class sessions, and should be brief (5-7 minutes). These presentations should include basic information about the game considered (such as mechanics, genre, theme, and core play loops). Each individual member of the group should present a specific topic such as a mechanic, thematic integration, player dynamics, or affordances. As the semester progresses, presentations should rely on vocabulary introduced in previous class sessions. All members of the group should participate in the presentation.

Assignment 5: Licensed Game Pitch

Students will work in groups to pitch a game based on an intellectual property the group chooses (approved by the instructor) that has not been previously adapted as a tabletop game. The pitch should focus on how the design would be approached, specifically in terms of which mechanics would be used to adapt the property and themes. This does not need to be a complete, tested game design, but rather a conceptual pitch on mechanics that would be suited to a particular IP.

Assignment 6: Comparative Analysis Paper

For this assignment, each student will propose a pair of games that will be approved by the instructor. The student will then write an individual 3-5 page comparative analysis paper comparing and contrasting the two games. The analysis should include concepts such as theme, complexity, and player experience, but focus primarily on how each game builds upon its component mechanics to create the final player experience.

Participation:

Participation is an important component of the course, and students are expected to participate enthusiastically in lectures, student presentations and critique.

Additional Policies

The only acceptable excuses for missing an assignment deadline or taking an incomplete in the course are personal illness or a family emergency. Students must inform the instructors before the assignment due date and present verifiable evidence in order for a deadline extension to be granted. Students who wish to take incompletes must also present documentation of the problem to the instructors or student assistant before final grades are due. Incompletes are only available after the withdrawal deadline.

Punctual attendance at all classes is mandatory. Students arriving more than five minutes late to three classes, more than ten minutes late to a single class, or leaving early, will be marked as having an absence from class. The following guidelines are from the Interactive Media & Games Division handbook regarding absences and grading and apply to all students.

Guidelines for unexcused absences affecting grading

Two absences: lowers grade one full grade point (e.g. from A to B)

Three absences: lowers grade two full grade points

Four or more absences: request to withdraw from course (instructor's discretion)

Social media, including text messaging and internet messaging, are excluded from class unless explicitly permitted by the instructor. A 0.5% grade reduction will result from each occurrence of a student being found using them.

Add any additional policies that students should be aware of: late assignments, missed classes, attendance expectations, use of technology in the classroom, etc.
