Course Description
This course introduces students to dynamic macroeconomic theory and its applications to policy. The course will cover the following topics: measurement of macroeconomic variables, growth theory, monetary economics, international macroeconomics, and the role of the financial system in the macroeconomy. We will also discuss the implications of macroeconomic theory for fiscal and monetary policy.

The course will meet for lectures twice weekly. In addition, there will be some discussion/review sessions run by the TA. Readings will be assigned to complement the lectures, both from the required textbook and from other sources. These readings will include news stories related to macroeconomics. They will be announced in class, via the class website, or via email.

Prerequisite(s): Econ 203,205; Either Math 118 or Math 125

Grading and Exams
There will be two exams: a midterm and a final. The midterm exam will be held in class. The final exam will be cover material from the entire course. For the date and time of the final for this class, consult the USC Schedule of Classes at www.usc.edu/soc. In addition, there will be several graded individual assignments assigned during the semester, with one due approximately every two weeks (they can be submitted either in class or via blackboard). The lowest score on a homework assignment will be dropped for each student. There will also be class discussions that students are expected to participate in. The grading breakdown is as follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Item</th>

Website
There will be a class website on the blackboard system, which will contain the syllabus, problem sets, and a schedule of readings.

Required Readings and Supplementary Materials
The required textbook for the course is Macroeconomics, 10th Edition (ISBN-13: 9781319105990) by N. Gregory Mankiw. Readings from other sources will be assigned in class or communicated via email/the class website.

Technological Proficiency and Hardware/Software Required
Some homework assignments will require the use of Microsoft Excel. USC students can download Microsoft Office (which includes Excel) at: https://itservices.usc.edu/officialstudents/

Statement on Academic Conduct and Support Systems

Academic Conduct
Plagiarism – presenting someone else’s ideas as your own, either verbatim or recast in your own words – is a serious academic offense with serious consequences. Please familiarize yourself with the discussion of plagiarism in SCampus in Section 11, Behavior Violating University Standards. Other forms of academic dishonesty are equally unacceptable. See additional information in SCampus and university policies on scientific misconduct, http://policy.usc.edu/scientific-misconduct/.

Discrimination, sexual assault, and harassment are not tolerated by the university. You are encouraged to report any incidents to the Office of Equity and Diversity http://equity.usc.edu/ or to the Department of Public Safety http://capsnet.usc.edu/department/department-public-safety/online-forms/contact-us. This is important for the safety whole USC community. Another member of the university community – such as a friend, classmate, advisor, or faculty member – can help initiate the report, or can initiate the report on behalf of another person. The Center for Women and Men http://www.usc.edu/student-affairs/cwm/ provides 24/7 confidential support, and the sexual assault resource center webpage sarc@usc.edu describes reporting options and other resources.

Support Systems
A number of USC’s schools provide support for students who need help with scholarly writing. Check with your advisor or program staff to find out more. Students whose primary language is not English should check with the American Language Institute http://dornsife.usc.edu/ali, which sponsors courses and workshops specifically for international graduate students. The Office of Disability Services http://sait.usc.edu/academicsupport/centerprograms/dsp/home_index.html and Programs provides certification for students with disabilities and helps arrange the relevant accommodations. If an officially declared emergency makes travel to campus infeasible, USC Emergency Information http://emergency.usc.edu/ will provide safety and other updates, including ways in which instruction will be continued by means of blackboard, teleconferencing, and other technology.
