International Relations 212: Historical Approaches to World Politics

Dr. Douglas Becker
CPA 231C
dfbecker@usc.edu
Office Hours: T/TH, 6:30-8:00, and by appointment
Class meetings: M/W 2:00-3:20
THH 201

This course examines the role of history in developing international relations research. It will teach the student to critically analyze history as data to test IR theoretic arguments. It will introduce the student to a broad array of historical narratives and cases, many of which have developed our understanding of international relations theory in a profound manner. And it will examine methodological questions, and in particular the role of theory in both the study of history and in international relations.

The educational goals of this course are as follows:

1) Consider the role that history and historical approaches play at understanding contemporary issues in international relations. International relations can often appear ahistorical, with statements such as “states act according to interests” and “democracies do not fight one another.” But these issues are rooted in historical developments. So first and foremost, this class is intended to highlight the importance of history and to place contemporary issues in their proper historical context.

2) Expose students to history as data used to test international relations theory. We will examine the ways in which the historian uses theory and builds narratives and analysis based on the “raw data” of the historical record. We will also examine how political motivations influence the historian’s account of the past. As such, students will learn to critically analyze history and evaluate its utility in advancing, testing, and revising international relations theory.

3) Reinforce the students’ understanding of IR theory by embedding it in the historical narratives and cases upon which it is built. This course is an extension of IR 210 and the student will understand both the meta-theoretical approaches in international relations (realism, liberalism, constructivism, feminism, Marxism, critical theories, et al) as well as specific statements within each approach (what is sovereignty? How do revolutions occur? What role do institutions play in peacemaking)?

4) Understand the differences between international relations as a social science and history as a humanities discipline. Students will read, evaluate, and argue in written work both as international relations scholars as well as historians. As such, this course serves as a bridge for dialogue between these two fields.

5) Develop a more global approach to history and its impact on international relations theory. Specifically we will examine non-western histories, including East Asian, African, and Latin American history and wrestle with the impact the inclusion of these histories should have on international relations theory.
6) Specifically examine from a constructivist critique of international relations theory the historical contexts of concepts. From sovereignty and democracy, to empire and colony; to gender, borders, and sphere of influence; and ideas as well as examine the essential role of identity in all international actors, from states to international organizations and non-governmental organizations. This latter is a concept called ontological security, which we will explore in detail.

7) Analyze the contemporary political implication of history both as identity construction. This will explore the notion of historical memory. History is not a static, taxidermist field. It involves the active remembrance of the past, or what we call issues of historical memory. These often can lead to contestations, or what is called mnemonic security. How do these contestations outline international relations. And what role does power play in these memory discourses, in particular as marginalized communities demand recognition of their own memories and in particular of atrocities.

The grades for this course are:

- 2 short 2000 word essays: 15% each
- Mid-Term: 25%
- Final: 30%
- Discussion Sections—participations and assignments: 10% total
- Class participation including simulations: 5%

The 2 short papers the student will write consider key philosophical points within the class. The first is an examination of the difference between international relations and history. The second is the relationship between identity, history, and memory. I will provide a more detailed description of the papers during the semester. The mid-term and final are in-class and will test the students' knowledge of history, as well the classroom material on the other issues. Discussion sections are required and there will be some short assignments and homework assigned in the sections. Those will be coupled with participation, which requires attendance and thoughtful participation in the discussions. The larger lecture also has a participation grade. This is not a class that’s too large to lead discussions. The grade requires attendance but most importantly you need to participate. We will conduct a few simulations as well as class discussions so you will have plenty of opportunity. Thoughtful and enthusiastic participation in these exercises is essential. ONLY UNIVERSITY SANCTIONED EXCUSES WITH PROPER DOCUMENTATION WILL BE ACCEPTED AS EXCUSES FOR LATE WORK. But I do always accept late work with a 5 POINTS A DAY penalty. Please consult the Trojan integrity Guide and the Undergraduate Guide for Avoiding Plagiarism (both can be accessed through the Student Affairs website) for guidelines. When in doubt, come in and talk with me about an issue.

Some key norms and rules for the classroom. Please be aware of these as we progress throughout the semester:

- Share responsibility for including all voices in the conversation.
  - This is not all that large of a class for a 200 level class. So we will hear from all of you this semester. These issues can often carry a significant resonance with us, since the issues we will raise can be contentious. Let’s make sure everyone has a chance to speak. If you find yourself being shut out of conversations, please let me know privately and I will make adjustments.
Listen respectfully.
- A great classroom is a dialogue. It is not simply my thoughts and you trying to remember them for exams. I want to hear from all of you. And I want you to hear from one another. We need to listen respectfully but also actively and critically.

Be open to changing your perspectives based on what you learn from others.
- Nothing is more exciting than learning something new. This allows us to evolve our perspectives and develop as scholars. I have learned something new from students every semester I've taught. I change material from semester to semester based on what I have learned. Always be prepared to change your mind.

Understand that we are bound to make mistakes in this space.
- I may have been raised Roman Catholic, but I am not infallible. That’s a joke I make throughout the semester. I will make mistakes. You will too. We learn from our mistakes, but we can’t be afraid to present our work and our thoughts on an issue because we might make one. When we do, we will respectfully update the information and learn from them.

Understand that your words have effects on others.
- Respect is based on the understanding that words matter. Freedom of speech means we can express ourselves freely. But it does not mean we don’t consider the effects these words have on others in the classroom. Please keep that in mind as we progress this semester. Let’s have a rich exploration and discussion of ideas while always remembering to respect one another.

Understand that others will come to these discussions with different experiences from yours.
- The best thing about a campus like USC is the rich diversity of the student body. We have students from all over the world. And I think I learned as much as an undergraduate from the conversations I had with my classmates than even from class work. Toleration of different experiences is boring. Revel in them! Learn from one another. And be aware of them.

Make an effort to get to know other students. Introduce yourself to each other.
- I like a class that’s loud and boisterous before I come in. Absolutely spend some time getting to know each other. We learn from one another, and the class material is easier to learn with friends in class.

NOTE: There are no books for purchase in this class. Everything is posted to Blackboard. So you should take the money you set aside for books and spend half of it on history books that just look interesting.

January: 9: Intros—Discussion of history and IR

Section 1: History and International Relations: A Comparison
11: History vs IR—how to do history
E. H Carr “What is History?” pgs 3-35, 113-143

Richard Devetak, “The battle is all there is’: philosophy and history in International Relations theory”

Discussion Sections: Introductions and how to view history as data

Section 2: History and IR Theory: Realism and Liberalism

16: Peloponnesian War—(plus a simulation on the Epidamnus crisis)

18: The Papacy

Barbara Tuchman, the March of Folly, pgs 51-126

Paper Prompt #1 handed out

Discussion Sections: What exactly are state interests?

23: 30 Years War and Sovereignty

Donald Pennington, “Thirty Years War” in Europe in the Seventeenth Century Routledge, 2015, 332-360

Izidor Janžekovič (2022): The Balance of Power from the Thirty Years’ War and the Peace of Westphalia (1648) to the War of the Spanish Succession and the Peace of Utrecht (1713), History of European Ideas, pgs 1-19

25: Medieval Africa

Howard French, Born in Blackness p 17-83, 247-274, 411-421

Discussion Sections: What is sovereignty?

30: Napoleonic Wars and the Conquest of Europe

Charles J. Esdaile, The Wars of Napoleon, Chapter 1, pgs 1-49

February 1: Concert of Europe (and the League of Nations)—a simulation

Discussion Sections: What is Collective Security?

Section 3: Global History and the decolonization of the historical canon

6: Chinese hegemony: power and norms

David Kang, “International Order in Historical East Asia: Tribute and Hierarchy Beyond Sinocentrism and Eurocentrism” International Organization 74, Winter 2020, pp. 65–93

8: China Confronts the Vietnamese Uprising—a simulation

Paper #1 due

Discussion Sections: Tribute vs Sovereignty

Section 4: Revolutions in World History

13: French Revolution

15: Haitian Revolution

Marlene Daut, Awakening the Ashes: An Intellectual History of the Haitian Revolution. Chapter 7-9, pgs 211-325

Discussion Sections: Anti-racism as revolutionary in international relations

20: Latin American Revolutions

22: Russian Revolution

Stephanie Shakhireva. “Swaddled Nation: Modern Mother Russia and A Psychohistorical Reassessment of Stalin”

Discussion Sections: Viewing Latin America through its history

Section 5: Colonization and Conflict—What Realism Doesn’t Cover

27: Conference of Berlin and African Colonization

P. M. Holt and R. W Daily, History of the Sudan Chapters 6-7, pgs 63-82

29: Middle East—the Infamous Sykes-Picot Treaty

Biger G., 2016, Is the Sykes – Picot Agreement of 1916 was the basis for the political division of the Middle East?, Journal of Geography, Politics and Society, 6(3), 50–58

Discussion Sections: Mid-Term Review

March 5: War of Filipino Insurrection and Filipino Identity
Daniel Immerwahr “Decolonizing the US” pgs 227-261
Andrew Yeo “Philippine National Independence” pgs 206-223
Luis H Francia “A History of the Philippines” pages TBD

March 7: Mid-Term

Discussion Sections: Cancelled due to Mid-term and upcoming Spring Break

March 12, 14: Spring Break

Section 6: Ontological Security and Memory

19: The July Crisis Simulation and why does Belgium fight Germany?
Steele, Brent. Ontological Security in International Relations: Self-Identity and the IR State. Chapter 5, pgs 94-113

Paper Prompt #2 handed out

21: Russia/Ukraine Plus Holodomor
Douglas Becker, “The Rationality and Emotion of Russian Historical Memory: The Case of Crimea” in Crisis and Change in Post-Cold War Politics: Ukraine in Historical Perspective, pgs 43-68
Anne Applebaum. Red Famine: Stalin’s War on Ukraine. Pgs 11-55, 320-360

Discussion Sections: Ontological Security vs Traditional Security

Section 7: World War II

26: Hitler and the rise of Germany
Richard Rosenbaum, Explaining Hitler, Introduction, pgs xi-xiv (11-41)
Wendy Lower, Hitler’s Furies, pgs 1-74
28: The Pacific War—World War II as decolonization, Dropping the Bomb

Discussion Sections:  Why did the US drop the Bomb?

Section 8: The Cold War

April 2: Who Started the Cold War?
Melvyn Leffler, A Preponderance of Power, pgs 1-24, 495-518

4: US Intervention in the Global South
NOTE:  I will be at ISA for this class so I will post a lecture to watch asynchronously

Mossadegh and Arbenz

The Cuban Missile Crisis
Martin Sherwin, Gambling with Armageddon, Chapter 5 pgs 29-40
Don Munton,“The Three Puzzles” pgs 142-164

Discussion Sections: Cancelled since Micky will also be at ISA

9: India/Pakistan and the Partition

Meenakshi Chhabra “A human rights and history education model for teaching about historical events of mass violence: The 1947 British India Partition”
Ian Talbot “Legacies of the Partition for India and Pakistan”
David Gilmartin “The Historiography of India’s Partition: Between Civilization and Modernity”

Jonathan Greenberg. “Generations of Memory: Remembering Partition in India/Pakistan and Israel/Palestine”

11: Israel/Palestine conflict

Larissa Saar, “Historical Consciousness In the Israeli-Palestinian Conflict: How the Construction of Conflict Narratives Deepens Existing Fault Lines” pgs 3-58

Discussion Sections: Decolonization, borders, and intractable conflict

16: The US/Mexican Border—the History of the Concept of Borders

Section 9: The End of the Cold War

18: Berlin Wall Comes Down

Discussion Sections: How does IR Theory explain the end of the Cold War?

23: The War in Afghanistan: Charlie Wilson’s War

George Crile, Charlie Wilson’s War, pgs 40-96

25: NATO Expansion and Russian Response

Mary Sarotte Not One Inch: America, Russia, and the Making of the Post-Cold War Stalemate. pgs 76-145

Discussion Sections: Did NATO Expansion cause the Russian Invasion of Ukraine?

30: Voluntary Final Review Session

Thursday May 2: Final Exam, 2:00-4:00

Support Systems

Student Counseling Services (SCS) - (213) 740-7711 – 24/7 on call

Free and confidential mental health treatment for students, including short-term psychotherapy, group counseling, stress fitness workshops, and crisis intervention.

https://engemannshc.usc.edu/counseling/

National Suicide Prevention Lifeline - 1-800-273-8255
Provides free and confidential emotional support to people in suicidal crisis or emotional distress 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. http://www.suicidepreventionlifeline.org

Relationship & Sexual Violence Prevention Services (RSVP) - (213) 740-4900 - 24/7 on call

Free and confidential therapy services, workshops, and training for situations related to gender-based harm. https://engemannshc.usc.edu/rsvp/

Sexual Assault Resource Center

For more information about how to get help or help a survivor, rights, reporting options, and additional resources, visit the website: http://sarc.usc.edu/

Office of Equity and Diversity (OED)/Title IX compliance – (213) 740-5086

Works with faculty, staff, visitors, applicants, and students around issues of protected class. https://equity.usc.edu/

Bias Assessment Response and Support

Incidents of bias, hate crimes and microaggressions need to be reported allowing for appropriate investigation and response. https://studentaffairs.usc.edu/bias-assessment-response-support/

Student Support & Advocacy – (213) 821-4710

Assists students and families in resolving complex issues adversely affecting their success as a student EX: personal, financial, and academic. https://studentaffairs.usc.edu/ssa/

Diversity at USC – https://diversity.usc.edu/

Tabs for Events, Programs and Training, Task Force (including representatives for each school), Chronology, Participate, Resources for Students

USC Department of Public Safety – UPC: (213) 740-4321 24-hour emergency or to report a crime.

Provides overall safety to USC community. dps.usc.edu

Academic Conduct

USC seeks to maintain an optimal learning environment. Students are expected to submit original work. They have an obligation both to protect their own work from misuse and to avoid using another’s work as their own. All students are expected to understand and abide by the principles of academic honesty outlined in the University Student Conduct Code (see University Governance, Section 11.00) of SCampus (www.usc.edu/scampus or http://scampus.usc.edu). The recommended sanctions for academic integrity violations can be found in Appendix A of the Student Conduct Code.

Emergency preparedness/course continuity

If an officially declared emergency makes travel to campus infeasible, USC Emergency Information http://emergency.usc.edu will provide safety and other updates, including ways in which instruction will be continued by means of Blackboard, teleconferencing, and other technology.

Students with Disabilities

USC is committed to making reasonable accommodations to assist individuals with disabilities in reaching their academic potential. If you have a disability which may impact your performance, attendance, or grades in this course and require accommodations, you must first register with the Office of Disability Services and Programs (www.usc.edu/disability). DSP provides certification for students with disabilities and helps arrange the relevant accommodations. Any student requesting academic accommodations based on a disability is required to register with Disability Services and Programs (DSP) each semester. A letter of verification for approved accommodations can be obtained from DSP. Please be sure the letter is delivered to me as early in the semester as possible. DSP is located in GFS (Grace Ford Salvatori Hall) 120 and is open 8:30 a.m.–5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday. The phone number for DSP is (213) 740-0776. Email: ability@usc.edu