

PHIL 503: Introduction to Contemporary Philosophical Literature on Value

Fall 2024

Wednesdays 4:30–6:50pm

MHP 102

Instructor

Ralph Wedgwood (wedgwood@usc.edu)

Course Overview

This seminar is an intensive survey of some of the most influential contributions to ethics of the last 50 years. The issues raised in these texts lie at the heart of much of the work in current ethical theory – in both normative theory and metaethics – and many of these texts would be regarded as among those that everyone who researches or teaches in any branch of ethics needs to be familiar with. The goal of the seminar is to develop a thorough understanding of these central issues. The assigned readings will all be made available on the course Brightspace site.

Requirements

- Presentations: Each student should give at least one class presentation.
- Three short papers (approx. 2500 – 3000 words each): due September 29, November 3, and December 8.

The topics for the three paper assignments will be circulated 2–3 weeks before the assignment is due.

Each student's grade for the course will be based on the class presentations (25%) and the three papers (25% each).
